

Michael Minor

Creative Technologist

Creative Brand Technologist using vast amounts of energy to pursue new business ventures. The fields have varied greatly to which I have been involved, strongly sustaining enthusiasm and passion in my work.

From guerrilla marketing to big budget ad campaigns I have helped in one way major or another. Planning, designing, developing, pitching, and brand analysis/improvement have all been major requirements within my pursuits that started when I was 16 years old; 19 years.

Experience

It starting with designing through the original 3D printer: Legos. From sketch to meticulous crafting, what was in my brain as a simple idea was built out to a complex and tangible object. Eventually the Web came along; and Legos were not part of the W3C standard. So I had to upgrade my skill set.

That skill set expanded to Design, Photography, HTML, CSS, Javascript, PHP, ActionScript, Coding Design Patterns, User Interfaces, User Experience Design. Marketing, Print Design, Web Standards, Motion graphics, Mobile Design/UX, and all the in between that are needed to make sure things go smoothly to and from all those areas with varying department sizes.

That skill set has lead to working with multi-national companies and showing them new ways to interact internally, with their customers, and gain new customers through real experiences.

What I Know

It takes a logical approach to chaos to make beautiful things. To push beyond the known limits for anything, it takes that discomfort and curiosity. But to actually proceed forward it takes a logical approach; making guidelines to remove the former discomfort and foster the curiosity. I'm lucky to make a living at what I do naturally, and I know the industry is always going to be changing.

Understanding that inputs are changing when it comes to devices, thoughts, and social progress is really where the strife comes from. And those changes need people to help guide them, and ease the discomfort.

What I know is this isn't just a job and more than a passion and curiosity, it's a hell of a ride and worth the extra hours when required. It's a responsibility to new ideas and cultivating their existence.
